Manager of the Gazette.

Theodore, the contestee for Speaker Carlisle's seat in the house of representatives, was granted the privilege of the floor yesterday to state his case. What ever impression he made on the members he seems to have at least been amusing.

The commission appointed by the New York legislature to consider the best method of inflicting the death penalty, has reported in favor of electricity. It may not be a great while until this mode of executing criminals will be universally adopted.

The state board of capitol commissioners has voted to cancel the contract with Richardson, who had the contract for the building of the new state house. At the time he secured the contract a meeting of citizens of the state was held to protest against it as his reputation for being "fat" contracts was not good. He has recently been in litigation with the commissioners for extra money he claimed due him.

Dr. Norvin Green, Jay Gould's figurehead in the Western Union telegraph syndicate, yesterday addressed the senate postoffice committee regarding the introduction of government telegraph bills. The good doctor holds out the sop that rates will be reduced during the coming year, and then realizing that if the company must surrender it is best to be in a high key lays that the working apparatus is worth a great deal more than is generally supposed.

A list of the presents to the pope on his jubilee and the giver would be one of the best indices of the wealth of the benefactors of Christianity the world. A list of those who gave little are the rulers of Catholic Germany, Protestant Holland, Protestant Sweden and Protestant England. If any of these rulers had sent to the pope a present on such an occasion two hundred years ago, it would have caused a revolution in any of the countries. What is more remarkable than all is a beautiful present, valued at ten thousand pounds, sent by the sultan to the pope. For him to have accepted the present, would have caused a revolution in the whole Catholic world. The homage paid by these rulers is all the more significant because the pope is no longer a temporal ruler, and it cannot be said therefore that these presents were sent to a brother sovereign. On the contrary, they were sent to him as the head of the most ancient and most venerable church in the world, a church which has played an important part in the history of all the nations mentioned almost from the Christian era to the present day. It shows a great advance in the world when we are able to show respect to people who sincerely and unselfishly hold to opinions which differ from our own.

It would have been a fortunate thing for Mayor Lee if he had been born deaf and dumb. He seldom opens his mouth without putting his foot in it. His letter to District Attorney Rickles will do the city of Denver more harm than all the sensational stories that have been published by the Denver papers. It never harms a city to undertake a crusade against vice, even though the crusade shows that more vice existed than was expected. The very fact that the press, clergy and the police of a city are right to have sympathies and are active in doing their duty is sufficient evidence that there is no need of worrying about the moral condition of a city. When however the chief editorial of the city writes a letter declaring that organization is injuring Denver, it will look greater than wrongs of years in the eyes of the world. Such letters have been the most conspicuous stories in the newspapers. Beyond doubt Denver of the stories are not true. It is only human to suppose that the stories are true and there is an effort to appear them. Some two or three years ago Dave Day in the Solid Muldoon, stood a brave fight for what he called "Sunday morality." The business men of the city cried against it and Dave was driven out. But Day persevered. The town that can be driven by a crusade against vice from the basement of vice and has all together has been a failure to be respected.

thought to make him an appropriate present. Yesterday they sent a large framed picture of the company as it appeared the evening of their arrival in town.

Yesterday a man accompanied by a woman, drove from Manitou to this city, and proceeding to the Grand View hotel registered as Mr. W. Smith and lady. After dinner the couple proceeded to Goddard, Bray & Wolhaupter's dry goods store and ordered a large bill of goods. He then left a check in one of the drummers hands in payment and Brayton left the store with the intention of showing the lady's wants. The man and woman then disappeared. The check was worthless and the police are in search of the couple. The woman was found with the goods at Dow's store, quietly waiting for the gentleman, who had disappeared. The goods were secured but the man got away from the woman and the team and drove back to Manitou. The police were of the opinion that he was an accomplice but [illegible] and proceeded him after a short consultation. After half hour had elapsed the woman returned to settle his bill at the hotel and found the police in possession.

In speaking of the attraction which will appear at the opera house next Monday evening, Dooley [illegible] efficient and respectful [illegible] have taken place in Carte Colchester in which since Mr. Haverly introduced the Mastodons some years ago. From a couple of colchesters on the curb, who actually constitute the show, Mr. Haverly evidently the finest talent in minstrelsy that could be secured and made with [illegible] of the company in connection with [illegible] The consequences to Mastodons have always been welcomed by the public with open arms, and received by the press in [illegible] Strange, but true, no organization bearing the trade mark "Haverly" was ever sprung that was not admired in every respect. This is due to the minstrel king's knowledge of the business and the care he has always exercised in not permitting his name to be employed in other words, he has declined to either foster an inferior organization or sell his name to it when such a transaction could not but cast discredit upon his world wide reputation. That it is one of the most liberal patronized is to show upon the minstrels which are associated with the name of Haverly and, although the present company at the opera house is owned and controlled by another man, it is not only up to the standard, but far beyond. The house last night was filled to overflowing and a royal reception did it extend to this combination of artists, who, in turn put forth every effort to deserve what they received. For a man who may be suffering with the "blues" this company affords the best tonic in the world. Their [illegible] this week bids fair to rival that of Dixey's. The Mastodons are certainly entitled to this tremendous patronage, for they furnish an entertainment very far superior to any similar organization in America.
